

3 Days of Freedom

After 15 years behind the prison walls, Piotr goes on his first leave.

Three Days of Freedom follows him as for the first time he engages with an outside world that has changed dramatically, and left him behind.

Public transport, eating at restaurants, experiencing consumer culture and even speaking to women are all new and baffling experiences for him, but perhaps none are so intense as a visit to his sister who he had lost contact with.

Meditating on the life he could have had, Piotr is forced into the realisation that he must soon once again return to his prison cell, and adjust his expectations once again of what kind of future he can realistically expect.

A 1 x 27' Documentary from Łukasz Borowski

